

Anticipation

Music by Thomas Siffling Lyrics by Hendrik Achenbach

Darling don't you think that it is you who should be taking the blame Darling don't you think it's time to hang your head in shame
And don't you ever say it wasn't something that you would anticipate Tell me why you took my love and turned it into hate

When she stopped and kissed your lips you knew that you were going astray When she looked you in the eye you could have walked away
And don't you ever say it wasn't something that you would anticipate She's the girl who set and you're the boy who took the bait

When you held that girl my love you knew I would be feeling the pain
When you held her close and left me standing in the rain
And don't you ever say it wasn't something that you would anticipate You're the boy who failed and she's the girl who sealed your fate

who should be taking the blame
Darling don't you think it's time to walk away in shame
And I can only say this wasn't something that you would anticipate
This is how you took my love and turned it into hate
